

Lead Poisoning, The Silent Epidemic: Toxicity, State Guidelines, Case Management and Resources

Contact hours will be offered for RNs.
Lunch will be provided.

With so many recent toy recalls due to lead-based paint and materials, parents may be looking to you for answers. Is lead poisoning a real threat? What can be done to reduce the risk? This free training will help you provide those answers, and enable us all to better protect our children from lead poisoning. This lead poisoning workshop is offered to nurses, environmentalists and others who want a better understanding of lead and how it impacts children. The three hour course will offer 3 contact hours to registered professional nurses. The course will be taught by Dr. Anil T. Mangla, Epidemiologist with the Georgia Department of Human Resources, and Forrest Staley with Georgia Childhood Lead Poisoning Prevention Program.
